Editor of the Pine Cone:

Having seen how the unfair treatment of Roscelli was railroaded through by the city council last Wednesday evening, without, as far as the listeners heard, any counting of names on the petitions for or against Roscelli, I advocate that when we next vote, we make a start toward having a city council made up of one business man, whose business is in Carmel, one woman, one retired service man, one artist and one professional man.

The Peninsula may or may not have its "Duke", but as far as I can see, Carmel has its dictator.

Louise E. Clark.

Council Refuses Petition Of Carmel Citizens To Keep Roscelli On Job

"It is a sad commentary on the City of Carmel that it should take this time to terminate John Roscelli's contract when the son is about to land from over-seas service, thinking that the business is awaiting him," Gordon Campbell said Wednesday night in his appeal to the City Council to rescind its action taken last month in cancelling the Roscelli garbage contract.

Almost a thousand Carmel people had made the same appeal by signing petitions and writing letters. Fifty-four citizens, as many as the council chambers would hold, and an equal number crowding the halls and stairs, appeared before the council in person to back up their appeal.

The city council gave them a flat "no" and opened the concession to bids.

Over the objections of Campbell, who pointed out that it is customary in such cases to hear the petitioners first, Mayor P. A. McCreery opened proceedings by reading his case against Roscelli, set forth in six pages of typewritten material that boiled down to two charges, that Roscelli's war time service was not up to the standard of the service he had given in the previous years he had held the city garbage contract, and that he had upped the garbage rate, contrary to city ordinance.

In answer, Campbell pointed out that Roscelli was so beset during the war with labor shortage that he had on several occasions to get up out of his sick bed to man the trucks himself. He is sixty-three years old and afflicted with rheumatism. His daughter, who is his bookkeeper, has had to go out with him on the truck to haul the garbage from house to truck. Under the circumstances, the service could not be maintained at pre-war standard. Roscelli could, at any time during these difficulties, have abandoned his contract with the city, since it was on a thirty day basis, but he kept faith with the city at a time when the city would have been put to it to find anyone to take the contract on any terms, and now, when Roscelli's son is about to be discharged from the army and can take over the work, and when labor and material shortages have eased, the city terminates the contract with Roscelli.

Council Sets Election Date; Other Business

The council passed a resolution calling for a municipal election on April 9, 1946, for three members of the city council, two of whom shall be elected for a term of four years and one of whom shall be elected for a term of two years.

The three members whose terms expire are Mayor P. A. McCreery, Fred Godwin, commissioner of health and safety, and Charles Childers, street commissioner, who was appointed to fill out the unexpired trem of the late Bernard Rowntree. (Fred Mylar served until it was discovered that post office employees may not serve in elective offices.)

None of the retiring councilmen have stated if they will run for reelection. They have until February 28, twelve noon, to file their nomination papers.

With the exception of Judges Ross Bonham and Harry Clement, who were appointed, election officials were chosen by lot. They are: Jeanie C. Klenke, Jean C. Whitcomb, Charlotte Morgan, Bernice Wermuth, Viola Kelsey and Alice Askew.

A letter from the police officers of city police department requesting that the city furnish patrol cars instead of continuing under the present arrangement of allowing the officers $50 a month to pay for the use of their own cars for patrol duty, was presented to the council, and the mayor requested Police Commissioner Allen Knight to look into the matter and report back to the council. The mayor stated that City Clerk Peter Mawdsley had made an investigation into costs and was of the

Local Union Goes To Bat For Berry; Asks Outside Help

Carmel's labor pains eased slightly this week. Sheet Metal Workers' Union Local #304 voted to call the International's West Coast representative at their next meeting and go to bat for Don Berry.

Berry is the twenty-two year old ex-Marine Staff Sergeant who was refused membership in the union as "overage," when he went to work for Cree Wilder here upon his discharge from the service. Age limit for apprentice-ship in the union is twenty-one.

While Berry's status goes right on the same to date, there is hope that the International's representative may be able to clarify the issue or give a favorable ruling. Local #304's reaction seemed favorable to raising the age limit for returned servicemen apprentices, yet it can do nothing on its own initiative.

The idea of a letter to the International requesting a revision in the latter's charter regarding age requirements was discarded as ineffective without the support of a large number of local unions.

All A F of L unions except the Painters', Plasterers', Sheet Metal Workers', Union, now have raised age limits or granted senority to applying veterans. The administration is attempting to persuade all unions to follow the government's lead in granting training to veterans of all ages.

Conservationists Win In Fight With M.G.M.; No Sets In Lobos; Amended Petition Regarded As "Face-saver"

Action taken by the State Park Commission at its meeting Friday and Saturday in Los Angeles constitutes a signal victory for the cause of the groups and individuals throughout the state who have been fighting for the protection of Point Lobos against the depredations of moving picture companies.

The Commission officially adopted the rules for the use and protection of Point Lobos Reserve that have been a part of the master plan but never before been officially acted upon by the Commission.

The Commission granted M. G. M's. face-saving amended petition for permission to take moving pictures in Point Lobos Reserve, "upon condition that in taking these shots there be no violation of the rules of the reserve."

The rules are so restrictive that even the Lobos League has no objection to moving pictures being made on the reserve provided the rules are respected.

M. G. M's petition originally consisted of a plan to build sets including a house, two warves, and a victory garden in Point Lobos Reserve. A flood of protests from conservationists and naturalists throughout the state was directed to the Park Commission. As a result, M.G.M.'s petition was whittled down to a request to take shots of Miss Greer Garson walking along some of the paths, and on the rocks near the ocean.

In a letter to Laidlaw Williams, Carmel Highlands, one of the leaders in the fight to restrict the activities of moving picture companies in Point Lobos Reserve, Park Commissioner Charles Kasch gave the following account of the Park Commission's action at its Los Angeles meeting:

Division of Beaches and Parks

February 4, 1946.

Dear Mr. Williams:

I did not wire you as requested for the reason that a brief telegram might be completely baffling to you. It would read something like this: "M. G. M. upon my motion given permission to make a motion picture in Point Lobos." And yet such is the fact.

However, here is the story.

It seems that the rules proposed by the advisory committee, appointed some years ago, had never been adopted by the Commission. Upon my motion this was done on Saturday, and these rules are now official.

M. G. M. presented an amended

Editor of the Pine Cone:

Will you kindly give space to the following facts vital to all owners of homes in the vicinity of Mission Ranch Club.

If Mr. Dienelt's property is rezoned as requested by Mr. Ashton Stanley, it will become for all time a "Business Zone" free from all restrictions save as to "architectural design."

This means any type of business and as many buildings as Mr. Dienelt or any future owner of the property may care to build, whereas he is now restricted to his present business and buildings sans any increase.

Unless owners of homes adjacent to Mission Ranch want a 50 acre Business Zone opened to all kinds of business, they should write their individual protests to The Advisory Committee, Monterey County Planning Commission, Care of Corum Jackson, Chairman, Carmel, before February 25, giving their lot numbers.

During my seventeen years residence on The Point I have endeavored to be "a good neighbor" and I hope this letter will be looked upon as the act of one.

Sincerely,

Jeannie Gada, Lots 4, 6, 8 and 10 —Block 3, addition 7. Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Carmel Unincorporated Votes Its Disapproval Of Change In Zoning

BY KIPPY STUART

Carmel Unincorporated, that started out as a small handful of Mission Tract residents, has swelled to sizable proportions. Citizens from all over the map were represented Tuesday afternoon at the General Joe Stilwell home on Carmel Point. The issue before this organization was whether or not the zoning laws affecting the Mission Ranch property shall be changed or remain as is. The opinions expressed were as broad and diversified as the personalities which conceived them.

Corum Jackson, who acted as moderator, frankly stated that he was representing the County Planning Commission and that his course was to be "straight down the road", neither for nor against the proposition. "I won't lean one way or the other, and if I do, will somebody push me back."

Mr. Ashton Stanley was then given the floor. Mr. Stanley stated that false rumors were being circulated to the effect that he contemplated erecting a glorified night club. He said that nothing was further from his mind. He drew beautiful word pictures of what could be done with the Mission Ranch property, stating that his sincerest wish was to give to Carmel a dignified hostelry of which the community could be proud. One of his proposed projects is to provide a recreation area for Carmel children.

Then the old liquor question raised its Hydra head. Miss Louise Kellogg took the floor objecting that if there were to be a bar in the proposed hostelry, then that was no place for children. This question was debated back and forth, the general conclusion being that if the bar were excluded, much objection might be removed.

Miss C. L. Glenn, a resident of the Mission Tract for many years, stated that she had fought to maintain the zoning laws in her vicinity long and earnestly; that every time a proposed change in this zoning law had been broached she had stuck her thumb in to hold the dyke. Miss Glenn pointed out that one of the serious consequences to citizens near the Mission Ranch is the unwonted traffic to and from the Ranch. The question was then raised; would traffic under the new management be more or less?

Doctor Blanchard Steeves gave the key talk of the afternoon. His

Editor of The Pine Cone:

I have not heard of a church being "covered," to use the vernacular, for a long time, so I would like to tell of a most unique and impressive service that I attended recently. I am referring to the evening service at All Saints' Episcopal Church. The impressiveness grew out of the fact that the choir was composed of Navy boys, in Navy uniform. Their firm young voices, ably trained by Craig Nelson, assistant chaplain, rang out in harmony that was most pleasing to an appreciative ear. The Rector brought out something in our lives that, I believe very few people give thought to, namely, that it is not the locality in which we live, but how we live our lives in said locality, that matters. The sermon was short enough to hold everyone's interest, and sink in—even I was impressed.

Sincerely,
C. M. (Pop) Smith.

Editor the Pine Cone-Cymbal:

In a recent issue there appeared a protest against the horrors of vivisection—with regard to dogs only. But why plead for the dogs alone? Other animals carved alive suffer just as cruelly. How incredible that anyone in human form can perpetrate the horrors of vivisection — even in the name of science! But so it is.

Worse than all, vivisection is unnecessary from any point of view. Many experienced scientists have found that better results can be obtained by killing the animal first and then dissecting at once than by dissecting while still alive.

There are no words to fit this hideous crime against helpless animals. Why should we let it go on and on? Aren't there enough decent-minded people among us to put a stop to it?

Editor of the Pine Cone:

I shall make this a short note, although it is on a subject upon which I feel most intensely, and I believe it one which you and the Pine Cone can undoubtedly help to remedy. I have been reading the Pine Cone for years as a resident of Carmel, so you know this is no "outsiders" idea.

I have been following the Point Lobos crusade with great interest. I'll admit that the movie makers can well damage that beautiful landmark. However, there is something that is doing much more damage to the park, constantly, and that is the horrible red parasite or fungus, I don't know which, that is killing the cypress trees. A month ago I made my way to the north side of the point. I may say that the trails are terrible now—I wonder if deliberately so—and it was with great difficulty that we reached the area visible from Carmel. I was aghast at the sight of the once beautiful green cypress trees with limbs covered by spongy red growth, or bare and rank and dank where the growth had once been. Three years ago the situation was bad, but you should see it now. It seems as if the trees have been terribly neglected and no preventative measures taken on the field. I have been told that scientists are working on this problem, and respectfully suggest that they and the Park Commission may well need a little gentle prodding on this score, also.

Yours most sincerely,
Katherine B. Ward.

Pinus Radiata Vs. Ground Hog, Pine Cone Backs The Pines

Pollen started falling Saturday from Pinus Radiata (Monterey Pine) and will continue for a month to shed down from the orange colored blossoms of the pine trees that surround us. The pollen fall will become heavier in the next two weeks until you will notice the greenish-yellow dust lying on your door sill, sticking in a fine film to the wind-shield of your car, riding like miniature kelp beds on the puddles after the rains, and producing considerable sneezing and handkerchief waving on the part of hay fever sufferers.

We have this information from Prof. Francis Lloyd, who visited our office Monday. He is the official harbinger of the Annual Pinus Radiata Pollen Season, and we consider the pollen fall a more reliable indication of the imminence of spring than a dozen ground hogs.

In re the Ground Hog: we received some friendly criticism this week for not interviewing Sir Marmota Monax when he emerged from his hole, failed to see his shadow, and remained out to signal an early spring. We believe we can explain to the satisfaction of our readers the seeming dereliction of duty on our part. We were in San Francisco on Ground Hog Day, and we hesitated to interview the San Francisco Ground Hog lest we give offence to our own local Ground Hog, and he refuse to emerge from his hole next year, just to get even. Besides, there was such a crowd of big city newspaper reporters from the San Francisco News, the Examiner, The Chronicle, The Call Bulletin and the Argonaut, that the Life Photographer and your Pine Cone representative couldn't get near him. Judging from his few squeaky words that reached us over the babble, he's a very conceited mammal, thoroughly spoiled by all the attention he has received because of a silly superstition, until he actually thinks he does know something about the weather. In deciding whether to follow the Ground Hog or throw in with the Pinus Radiata Pollen Partisans in determining which is the most reliable prognosticator of Spring, people shouldn't lose sight of the fact that though Marmota is the Ground Hog on Ground Hog Day, he's just a common, ordinary woodchuck the rest of the year. —W.C.

● U. S. O. NOTES...

By JIM COOKE

The time has come to give a definite answer to the question, "When will the USO consider its wartime mission accomplished and terminate its operations?"

The people who contributed the millions for such a fine service have a right to know. The Army and Navy require the answer. At least half a million USO volunteers and the staff members have all been wondering.

Therefore, the Executive Committee and National Board of Directors of USO have unanimously affirmed the following decision:

"USO will complete its wartime, demobilization and reconversion services December 31, 1947."

Last Saturday night the Carmel USO Carousel gave another shining example of the splendid talent that is continuously discovered at Fort Ord.

Sam Greenspan wore his uniform for the last time, and before going home, gave another of his expert M/C jobs. Sam must live where it never rains, and as the rain pattered on the roof, he kidded California about its heavy fogs.

The first act to be introduced was Oscar Hugo, the prestidigitator from Fort Ord, and Columbus, Ohio. Oscar, who has performed in three and a half years in seven different camps, giving over seven hundred shows, to over 350,000 men, was recommended last week by his commanding officer to receive the new Commendation Medal and Ribbon. One of his newest tricks, using fifty three decks of cards, worked perfectly for the baffled audience.

Sam Greenspan, with the help of Virginia Dilligham, (now visiting Carmel), put on a bit of magic that he learned in India.

A new member of the Carmel USO Club was Cpl. Bill Wollbrinck, who with his fine baritone voice, sang, All the Things You Are, The Way You Look Tonight, and You Stepped Out of a Dream. Bill was beautifully assisted at the piano by Carmel USO Hostess Edith Marie Fonteneau.

The last of these new acts found Vincient Poulin of Fort Ord and Evanston, Illinois, giving three brilliant numbers at the piano, Nocturnes No. 1 and 2 by Chopin, and Polonaise No. 2 in E Major by Listz.

Evelyn Burr, May Nally and Mrs. J. Dempsey presided at the Snack Bar.

Sunday afternoon the Carmel USO celebrated the rounding out of five years of splendid service to our men and women in uniform.

Some of the highlights of the tea served from three to six o'clock should be noted. Gracing the lovely long table was a beautiful white cake for the Birthday of Carmel USO from General and Mrs. Joseph W. Stilwell. Miss Flora Hartwell decorted the rooms with her beautiful flower arrangements. Miss Anne Barrows, program director, and Miss Margaret Achterman, staff director, saw that everything ran smoothly, resulting in a perfect party.

Mrs. Blanchard P. Steeves, Mrs. Joseph W. Stilwell and Mrs. Arthur Strasburger presided at the tea table.

General B. C. Lockwood, Jr., was one of the many guests who arrived during the tea hour.

Assisting as hostesses during the celebration were Mrs. L. F. Bosshardt, Miss Helen Grandy, Mrs. H. O. Hagstrom, Mrs. Bee Martin, Dr. Olive Swezey, and Mrs. A. Vaughn.

During the day many people were heard remarking about the orderly appearance of the Carmel USO building and the grounds about it. Credit for this must go to Mr. Clarence Lucas who does a fine job in keeping it thus.

Mrs. Nicolay

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Nicolay of Carmel Valley, who died Tuesday at a Monterey hospital after a long period of failing health, was set for this morning at 9 o'clock in the T. A. Dorney chapel, Monterey, followed by requiem mass at Carmel Mission, with interment in the Monterey Catholic cemetery.

Born in Alviso, California, she had spent most of her 76 years in the Peninsula area. For the past 60 years she had lived at her ranch in the Carmel Valley and was a member of the Native Daughters of the Golden West of Salinas. Mrs. Nicolay was the widow of the late Barney Nicolay and sister of the late Mrs. Mamie Taufner and John Clark of Monterey.

Surviving are her daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Coleman of Carmel Valley; a sister, Mrs. Louis Feliciano of Berkeley; two nephews, Stanley Clark of Monterey and George Clark of Salinas.

Carmel Members Attend Regional Conference, League of Women Voters

Six other members of the executive board of the Monterey Peninsula League of Women Voters accompanied the president, Mrs. Fenton Grigsby, to Palo Alto on Wednesday to attend the regional conference of the organization. Reports on activities and legislative matters and plans for future studies made up the program. Those attending were Mrs. Bruce Spencer, secretary; Miss Orre Haseltine, director; Mrs. Howard Clark, Mrs. J. M. Rigdon, Miss Agnes Shand, and Miss L. Lucile Turner.

Supporting the national organization's campaign to bring wider understanding of the vital importance of the United Nations Organization in preserving peace and promoting international cooperation, Mrs. Hugo F. Holm of Oakland conducted a round table with the theme, Make UNO Work. The purpose is to make every citizen conscious of responsibility for achieving this goal and aware that a good standard of living in one country is dependent upon conditions in other countries.

Other round tables were held upon the fields selected for special attention this year including child care, housing, public health and mental hygiene, civil service, education, employment conditions, and press relations. The bills introduced in the special session of the legislature on some of these problems are of special concern to the league because of their bearing on welfare of the family.

In the morning round table on matters before the state legislature, bills were discussed and the group voted to send a telegram to the chairman of the committee handling the housing bills, giving suport to AB 45, which provides aid for local redevelpment programs and other long-term housing plans and a State Housing Authority. This seems to be the best of the three bills on community redevelopment. Such a program for the Monterey Peninsula was recently suggested, and would benefit from such a law.

Adoption of the National League of Women Voters program of study and action for the year was voted at the general meeting in the afternoon. This has been boiled down to three brief statements, but explanation of the large implications of the program is given in Publication No. 51 of January, 1946, of the League's series of leaflets. The three governmental issues chosen for the year are as follows:

A. Full United States responsibility for strengthening the United Nations Organization.

B. Strengthening the organization and procedures of the Congress, including support of a constitutional amendment changing the procedure of approval of treaties to a majority vote in both Houses.

C. Economic policies which promote maximum production and employment.

"The League of Women Voters," says the statement setting forth this program for 1946, "promotes political responsibility through active and informal participation of citizens in government." L.L.T.

Norwegian Girl At Univ. of California On AAUW Fellowship

Members of the Monterey Peninsula Branch of the American Association of University Women are hoping to have as their guest speaker at some time this year Miss Anne Sophie Oestvedt of Norway, A.A.U.W. fellowship student at the University of California, where she is working in chemistry of foods and preparing to use her knowledge to help restore the health of her nation. The local women like to think that their study grant of $530, one of the first units raised in California, is a part of the $1500 fellowship that enabled Miss Oestvedt to come to this country for advanced university work for the benefit of her homeland.

This Norwegian girl's life during the Nazi occupation reads like a most exciting adventure story, and that is just what it is, with her life in danger time after time. She edited the leading resistance newspaper, served as messenger with important letters to Sweden, and became the acting chief of the whole resistance movement of southern Norway. The Gestapo sent forty-five men to arrest her, and failing to find her, they seized her sister as a hostage.

She was then transformed from blonde to brunette, with new eyebrows and lashes and given a new identity card, and for two and a half years no member of her own family knew her whereabouts while she continued her dangerous and important work. One day she stood beside her father in a street car without being recognized and without betraying her identity. "She is alone among our male or female cooperators," wrote her chief in the underground movement, "to have stood the nervous strain of two and a half years without contact with family or friends." But her activities were not revealed until more than six months after the Nazi surrender, in fact not until she reached this country.

The national A.A.U.W. had raised $15,000 for fellowships by January, and had brought six women from Europe for university study in the United States. Another group will be brought next fall, as associations throughout the country are raising funds to bring additional students who upon their return can help to restore the higher education that was destroyed by the Nazis.

Van Bibber Elected President of B.A. Last Night, Maybe

If the Business Association can find no better time to hold its meetings than Thursday when the Pine Cone is going through its old but substantial Miehle press, and the Pine Cone has to guess what the Business Association is doing, and occasionally the Business Association doesn't do as the Pine Cone guesses, that's the Business Association's risk, and it's too bad.

A month ago, the Pine Cone said that Ernest Morehouse would be the next president of the Carmel Business Association, provided he accepted the job. Neither the Pine Cone representative nor Morehause was at that Thursday night meeting when Mr. Morehouse was elected. The following day Mr. Morehouse asked to be excused on the grounds that he already serves in enough club activities.

As the Pine Cone went to press yesterday afternoon, indications were that Noel Van Bibber would be elected president of the Carmel Business Association at its dinner meeting at the Chop House Thursday night if he chose to run.

Lloyd Weer is vice president of the organization, or was Thursday afternoon.

EIGHT TONS OF CLOTHES

Carmel contributions to the Victory Clothing Drive which ended last week total about eight tons, Postmaster Ernest Bixler, drive chairman, said yesterday. He indicated that lack of covers for crating has kept most of the garments in the warehouse here, in spite of intentions to get them up to Oakland immediately. Approximately 5,200 pounds of clothing were sent off today, he said.

Council Sets Election Date; Other Business

opinion that the city could buy and maintain three patrol cars, and over a period of three years show a saving over the present system of paying $50 a month car allowance to each of five police officers.

On the request of Edward Kuster's attorney, Wesley Kergan, the hearing on Kuster's application for reclassification of his Carmel Playhouse property on Monte Verde from a residential to a commercial area was continued to the adjourned meeting of the city council on February 20, at which time an amendment of the zoning ordinance will have its first reading.

March 6 was set as the date for a public hearing on the application of Joe and Nellie Olivero for a reclassification of their property on the North West Corner of Junipero and Sixth from Zone C 1 to Zone C 2 for a bus depot.

Building permits were granted Chippenden and Prosser, for a commercial and manufacturing building on the Northwest Corner of Junipero and Fifth, for cabinet work and ceramics manufacture; to Bernard Laiolo for a commercial addition to a residence to house a radio repair shop, East Side of Mission between Third and Fourth; to Karl Prussian, to build a taxi office building on the South West Corner of Seventh and Dolores, after the city attorney gave his opinion that permission could not be denied on the ground that it was for a non-conforming use.

Date of the public hearing before the state board of equalization representatives on the council's protest of the transfer of the off sale liquor license of the Drive Inn Market from Lawrence L. Clift to Edwin M. Tomasini was announced as February 14, 2 p.m., Carmel City Council Room. The city clerk was instructed to notify interested parties, the church groups and the school authorities.

Notice from the State Board of equalization of the request of Kenneth Carleton for a transfer of off sale liquor license to Karl C. Bertelsman, new owner of Carleton's Grocery, was read.

"I can see no reasonable cause for filing protest," said Mayor McCreery, and no action was taken.

Transfer of business license was granted to Nelson and Martin, John W. Martin, Sr., from Kenneth C. Goold, for the Carmel Cleaners, Dolores Street; to Frank I. Putnam, Jr., and Mark J. Raggett from F. R. Meagher for Meagher and Company, Ocean near San Carlos; to William H. Ellis from Doreen N. Abramson for Ardee's, Dolores Street near Seventh; to Jess W. Black and Hilda Black from Hilda Black for the Poke About Nook, joint tenancy.

Permission to hang signs was given Floyd Adams for Hobby House, Ocean between Mission and San Carlos, and William H. Ellis, Ardee's Leather Shop, Dolores between Ocean and Seventh.

Harry Butts Badly Hurt In Car Crash

Harry Butts, formerly at Bud's Service Station, Fifth and San Carlos, was injured seriously Wednesday night when his car went out of control on the slippery Fremont Extension pavement near the Del Monte Hotel.

The car rolled over twice and ended up against a telephone pole. It was badly demolished, about the only things left intact being the heater and two tires. Butts was pulled from the debris with a broken leg, hip, arm, and shoulder, and a possible skull fracture. Other motorists summoned help immediately, and he was taken to the Monterey Hospital, where he has been reported out of danger.

His companion, Norma Smith, also of Carmel, escaped serious injury, but was treated at Monterey Hospital for head bruises.

THIRTY-ONE CANDLES

The editor is slightly pink around the ears. When she overlooked her own wedding anniversary last September, she was able to talk her way out of it, but last week she overlooked the imminence of the Pine Cone's birthday! Not until she saw the copy for Betty Haskell's Days Before Yesterday Column for this issue was she reminded that February 3 was the Pine Cone's thirty-first birthday.

To make amends, she suggested that she take this week off and let the staff put out the paper, "giving the Pine Cone readers a real birthday present," but the staff saw through the device and said, "No."

application to the Commission, requesting permission to take some pictures of Miss Greer Garson walking along some of the paths, and on the rocks near the ocean. Mr. Horton, the location manager, stated that his company would comply with the official rules for the reserve. Thereupon, I moved that the amended application be granted upon condition that in taking these shots of Miss Garson there be no violation of the rules for the reserve, which motion was carried without dissent.

I have never had any objection to the use of the reserve by anyone so long as the rules set up by the advisory committee were observed. There can be no reasonable objection to this course, and in view of the action of the Commission now taken in officially adopting these rules, I do not apprehend that any application for the use of Point Lobos which will require a violation of these rules can be entertained.

Carmel Unincorporated Votes Its Disapproval Of Changes In Zoning

clear unimpassioned thinking had pruned away all petty branch-issues that tend to confuse and side-track main issues. Dr. Steeves stated once the bars on the zoning laws were let down, anything could happen. That the residents living near the Mission Ranch did not want any commercial venture of any nature in their midst. That it was a residential area and should be kept so.

Up to this point, no one present had had the courage to speak for Mr. Stanley's project and Dr. Helen Field, Secretary of Carmel Unincorporated, brought this point to light. Mrs. Joseph Stilwell was then asked to express her opinion. Mrs. Stilwell said that she was of two minds; that since she did not live near the property under discussion, she had no objections to Mr. Stanley's proposition. However, if she did happen to live in the Mission Tract that she would be against it. Mrs. Howard Clark was asked to express her opinion and Mrs. Clark said she was for Mr. Stanley's proposition. Miss Tilly Polak expressed the same opinion. Bob Harnish spoke in favor of Mr. Stanley.

When brought to the vote, nineteen were against any change in the zoning plans, thirteen were in favor of it. The County Planning Commission will be notified of the reaction of the local group.

Carmel Unincorported will hold its annual meeting Friday, February 15, at 3:30 p.m. at the Parish House of All Saints' Church, when reports for the year will be heard and officers elected. Though the group was founded in September, it is to be conducted on the calendar year, hence the present date for the election of officers. Any property owners who live outside the city limits of Carmel are eligible for membership.

Four New Carmelites

Boys outnumbered the girls three to one in the recent Carmel births recorded at the Peninsula Community Hospital. On Jan. 31, a boy, Paul Ernest Marie Kersten, was born to Mr. and Mrs. M. Kersten.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Madsen became parents of a girl, Sharon, on Feb. 4. Two boys were born Feb. 5, Walter Lee Duhart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Duhart, and a son to Mr. and Mrs. William B. Kiger.

Chaplain Hertz Transferred

Chaplain Richard C. Hertz, Jewish chaplain at Fort Ord for the past two and one-half years and a resident of Carmel during that time, has been transferred to Camp Beale. Mrs. Hertz, now a patient at Fort Ord Regional Hospital, will join him as soon as discharged from the hospital. The chaplain was widely known on the Peninsula, speaking before many church and civic groups and conducting a radio program, Chaplains Who Serve. He was also advisor to the executive board of the Monterey Interracial Committee.

Modern In Feeling, Personal In Style, Stevenson's Oils Popular At Gallery

By Patricia Cunningham

At a reception last Friday evening, the Carmel Art Association opened the one man show of oils by Barbara Stevenson. Hung in the large gallery, they initiate the Art Association's new program of one man shows to alternate with the regular exhibitions at the bi-monthly intervals. The great interest and enthusiasm of those present at the reception testified to the popularity and success of this new policy.

Modern in feeling and very personal in style, Miss Stevenson's paintings activate the wall surfaces in a most interesting way. Close up, one can examine her technique of a thickly applied patine of pigment composed of many small areas of color, put on and blended with the palette knife. Each of these small areas is clear and brilliant and generally of high intensity, but so harmonized that from even a short distance, the color vibrations coalesce and merge into a softly glowing, almost pastel effect. With definite, sometimes fairly strident color, she achieves an overall impression of subdued luminosity. This knowledge and skill in her handling of color is backed up by strongly conceived compositional structure, so she is admirably equipped to present the interpretive feeling with which she approaches the subject matter.

In each painting the observer gets the idea that the subject is of particular and unusual interest. This is so because she skips any concern with superficialities and the copying of appearances for the much more valuable and rewarding aim to give the observer the vitality and intrinsic feeling of the subject. She does not merely present an idea; she allows you to experience it with her. So we admire her technical facility, but even more do we appreciate her courage in employing it with integrity.

Like all artists, Miss Stevenson does not reach her peak in every painting. There are some that stand out as being more characteristic of her particular abilities. Among these, Wall Street is most successful. It conveys a mood of power and mystery, realized by most competent technical handling. The vertical area of dark opposed to the strong diagonal of the street gives contrast and movement, while the suggestion of space planes gives depth and air. Everything works together. Another, Park Avenue Bridge, used receding verticals and the strong opposition of the diagonal thrust of the bridge. The opalescent color harmonies create surfaces that seem to shimmer in light. This is also true of Green Tower, which vibrates with pearly pinks and greens. Other paintings, which seem conceived in a similar, rather classic, vein, are Alameda Street, Warehouses, Three Towers, Jersey Back Street.

The artist strikes a more romantic mood and method in Christmas Day, Frankie and Johnnie, Two Lovers, Flight from Egypt and other paintings containing figures. In contrast to the city paintings, these assemble a greater lushness in color and more sensuously rounded contours. Two Towers and The Prophet are especially characteristic of this phase, with their sweeping rhythmic curves and brilliant color.

It is interesting to observe this coordination of formal mood with subject matter and its general effectiveness in getting the desired effect, suggested always by the titles. An unusual and admirable achievement in semi-abstract painting.

The show will be on view for two weeks from the opening date and is a splendid opportunity for those interested in contemporary painting in particular and sound painting in general.

Authentic Costumes Interesting Feature Of "Little Women"

By CAROL HILDEBRAND

A large number of children and quite a few adults gathered Saturday afternoon at Sunset Auditorium to see the play, "Little Women", the famous and much loved story by Louisa May Alcott. This is the story of the four young women, Meg, Joe, Beth and Amy.

The cast was comprised of a group of young people from the Children's Theatre in Palo Alto. Their ages range from about eight to eighteen. The adult parts were played by the older ones; adequate make-up and wise costuming added years to their real ages. The young ones displayed a lot of vitality in their performances.

The players, being accustomed to a smaller building, failed to throw their voices enough to fill our large auditorium. Indeed, this is the major problem, due to the accoustics, encountered by older and more experienced thespians playing in the building. However, we caught their lines enough to know what was going on.

Costuming was excellent, colorful and authentic. Styles of the period gave a very old fashioned feeling to the play. The young ladies should be complimented on their handling of hoop skirts, a difficult task.

The play used one set. Furniture for the play was generously lent by Mr. La Porte of Pacific Grove, especially for the play. Franklin Dixon's placing of the set was superb, and served to give us a very "homey' feeling.

Appreciation is due this group of young people, who made the trip from Palo Alto to present the play, which showed many hours of effort on the part of each young member of the cast.

De Vault, C.W.C. Speaker, Points Out U.S. Errors Abroad After World War I

By Helen Clark Cranston

Not in many a day has the usually placid atmosphere of a Carmel Woman's Club General Meeting been surcharged as it was last Monday afternoon when Mr. Charles L. De Vault addressed members and guests on America's Outlook Now. The pin-drop silence in the audience was broken now and again by murmurings of approval and spontaneous hand-clappings. Heads were seen to nod and only occasionally did one sense the stiffening of a spine or the lifting of an eyebrow.

Mr. De Vault appraised various aspects of his subject against a background of twenty-two years spent in American consulates and embassies in some of the world's great capitals, — London, Paris, Tokyo and Mexico City. This broad experience has given him a philosophical attitude an dthe ability to take the long view which is steadying in these days of endless confusion. "We have always had troublous times and I suspect we always will", declared the speaker. "What alarms us now", he added, "is that we have our second big chance to get right but we fear that we won't profit by our mistakes."

The speaker pointed out the efforts made in the past by individual Americans to promote world peace,—Carnegie's gift in 1910 of the marble Peace Palace at the Hague to serve an International Court which he hoped would materialize; Woodrow Wilson's great concept of the League of Nations.

Against these constructive efforts toward world cooperation Mr. De Vault outlined some financial operations conducted by international bankers after the first World War which, he said, resulted in "breaking the economy of France and other European countries". The speaker declared that "America used ten billion dollars to beat down the European currencies and as a loan to the Germans to bolster German economy and help them prepare for the second World War in spite of warnings from diplomats and consular offices". Mr. De Vault added that we did not get any of it back because Hitler came along and declared a moratorium on all foreign debts,—reparations and commercial loans.

The speaker stated that from his observations he does not believe America is half as influential abroad as we like to think we are. After World War I, he declared, we sent abroad many different specialists as attachés, trade commissioners, public health officials, Treasury Department agents, etc., whose announced purpose was to learn about world trade, international methods, etc., but whose real purpose was to instruct foreign countries in the superior American way. However, added Mr. De Vault, the foreign countries weren't having any because they were satisfied with their own methods acquired by centuries of experience and they resented upstart interference.

Mr. De Vault stated that not all our German problems lie within Germany as "all the Latin countries from Tierra del Fuego to the Rio Grande are swarming with German agents, many of them people of prominence" and these people are unceasing in their efforts to incite Latin Americans against the U. S. J. Edgar Hoover had told him two years ago, said the speaker, that there were eight hundred thousand Nazi agents in the U. S. alone. Mr. De Vault also pointed out that out of our national population of 140 million there are three and one-half million unnaturalized residents.

Deploring the thoughtless criticism of Great Britain in which some Americans indulge, Mr. De Vault stated that in spite of mutual irritations we have in common so many fundamentals of democratic background and purpose that minor differences should be ignored.

Mr. De Vault believes that possibly within two years Japan will adopt a democratic form of government "which will be more nearly the real thing than that in any country on this globe except possibly Switzerland". This will not be because of deep convictions on the part of the Japanese populace, but because of their native ability, as a primitive, single-minded people, to adapt and adopt. After Perry signed the Treaty with Japan in 1856 the Japanese borrowed and copied whatever they wanted from any nation without concern as to patent or copyright, declared Mr. De Vault. "I think they will just lift our governmental system in the same way, provided MacArthur is allowed to pursue his course without interference from the Russians or Washington politicians".

● SPORTING NOTES...

By FRANCIS SHEA

Predictions by many well-informed persons that Carmel Padre heavyweight hoopsters would lose to the Hollister Haybalers by a considerable margin proved far from accurate. The previously undefeated Hollister team that was leading the C.C.A.L. took a sound drubbing from an underdog Padre quintet which played perhaps its best game of the season and wound up the 34-27 winner. By thrashing Hollister, Carmel pulled itself up to a temporary tie with that school for League honors.

The Padres started slow, but warmed up to accumulate a tidy 8-3 lead by the end of the first quarter. In the second stanza Haybaler ace McAbee went to work and tallied four field goals to bring up his squad's total to 12 against 15 for Carmel.

The third quarter saw some fine basketball, Padre Clayton Neill, star of the game, scoring three baskets in a row and giving the crowd an example of top-rate, clever playing more fitted for a college rather than a high school contest. Neill racked up a total of 16 points, and because of this and his outstanding work in other games he is just about assured of a high spot in the All-C.C.A.L. to be chosen at the end of the season.

The third stanza ended 27-17 for carmel and at the close of the exciting encounter it was the Padres, 34-27.

Padre heavyweight starters: Clayton Neill 16, Art Templeman 7, Martin Irwin 6, Tom Hefling 2, and Owen Greenan 2. Reserves: Richard Mulholland 1, Ralph Westover, Lew McCreery, and Bill Garguilo.

Padre Babes made what is considered by many to be their worst showing this year, losing a slow, unexciting contest, 20-15. Hollister led 6-4 at the quarter and 7-5 at half time. The Babes had crawled out in front 15-12 by the end of the third period, thanks mostly to the efforts of high-point man Bill Sapsis, but the last stanza saw Hollister rally and hold Carmel scoreless while they racked up 8 points to cop the game.

Lightweight starters for Carmel: Bill Sapsis 6, Dick Larkey 4, Paul Warner 3, Lee Winslow 2, and Murray Wight. Reserves: Frank Timmins, Dick Garguilo, David Wilson, Curtis Gorham, Mike Monahan, and Bob Rissell.

Kelly Criticises Paternalism In Talk To Peninsula G.O.P.

Addressing the Monterey Peninsula Republican Women's Club in Pacific Grove last Thursday afternoon, Earl Lee Kelly stressed the need for constructive leadership in all branches of government. His subject was State Republicanism, and he expressed his firm belief in the desire of the citizens of California for a sound, stable government opposed to "paternalistic legislation which masquerades as humanitarian."

Referring to the 900,000 returning service men and women, Mr. Kelly said the average veteran will be the greatest asset our state ever had. Following the talk and group discussion, tea and coffee were served. Pouring were Mrs. Edward H. Tickle and Mrs. C. Montague Irwin.

CALIFORNIA WATER & TELEPHONE COMPANY ANNOUNCES $400,000 IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

FILTER PLANT TO BE CONSTRUCTED, ALSO DIRECT WATER MAIN TO CANNERIES

California Water & Telephone Company, pursuant to its policy of improvement, which of necessity was delayed while our country was at war, and to meet the exceptional growth of the Peninsula which occurred from 1940 to date, announces —

(1) The construction of a filter plant to filter all water delivered to its consumers, and assure uniformly clear sparkling water.

(2) Work is now in progress on the mechanical cleaning of transmission mains, and sterilization of all mains by a new method. This will be followed by installation of equipment for continuous treatment to prevent recurrence of objectional condifions.

(3) Foundation explorations and design studies for a new dam to be constructed when water requirements on the Peninsula warrant. This has been in progress for some time and will be continued extensively during this year.

(4) Replacement of 7,000 feet of the old 18 inch diameter transmission main with new 30 inch pipe to deliver a much greater volume to consumers.

(5) Installation of 18 inch diameter pipe line direct to the Canneries from the transmission system, to assure normal service at all times to other consumers.

(6) Other improvements, replacements and additions to assure universally good pressure conditions in all parts of the system, and to extend service.

Total construction expenditures will approximate $400,000. (This year's budget will bring total expenditures for capital additions made by the present management to over $1,400,000.)

Completion of these plans is, of necessity, contingent upon our ability to obtain materials, and upon factors beyond our control.

The Company, to the best of its ability, will continue to keep pace with the growth of the community, and adequately meet its needs.

Days Before Yesterday

By Betty Haskell

Thirty-one years is no small span of life for a weekly newspaper and the Pine Cone passed that birthday February 3. Published on Wednesday, later on Saturday, and finally on Friday, the Pine Cone has faithfully appeared on the streets of Carmel every week since 1915.

You may be the kind that picks it up casually if it happens to be lying around the house and glances briefly at front page and Pine Needles. Or you may be the kind that storms into the office if the paper is a mail delivery late and reads everything down to the last classifed ad. But no matter what your attitude is, you'd find Friday mornings strangely empty and unreal if you were not assaulted half a dozen times on your way to the post office by the youth of the village crying "Pine Cone?"

Being a Pine Cone newsboy is an experience most kids go through if they live here for very long. Joy Ballam and Marie DeAmaral used to have exclusive rights on the job, and peddled their papers on roller skates. Hoary with tradition are the weekly fights for the envied postion at the post office door.

William L. Overstreet was the first editor, with his wife, Kit, writing the Pine Needles. The Overstreets had come to Carmel in 1910, when the population was 250, with no thought of starting a newspaper, though he had learned the business thoroughly in San Francisco. By 1913 the population was growing rapidly and Bill Overstreet was well settled in Carmel. It was then that the idea for the Pine Cone first occurred to him. He purchased a press operated by foot power, type and other equipment that year and in 1914 began to do job printing. Maybe the Pine Cone never would have gotten started if someone hadn't rumored it around that someone else was thinking of starting a paper on March 1, 1915.

Anyway, it snapped Bill into action and he tore around gathering news, soliciting ads, arranging for special contributions and setting type. He kicked the papers off the press (they had to go through four times) folded the single sheets and distributed them. The Pine Cone was born.

William Overstreet's initial editorial in the February 3, 1915, Volume 1, No. 1, issue of the Pine Cone, starting out with the brave words, "We have come to stay—" has been quoted and reprinted on these birthday occasions throughout the years until it has taken on some of the hallowed atmosphere of the Gettysburg address and the sacred "Yes, there is a Santa Claus—" editorial of the New York Sun. Whereas the second editorial in the first issue of the Pine Cone has been shamefully neglected. To make amends, here it is:

Begin To-day

"You owe it to yourself no less than to your village to patronize the home merchant.

"The local store-keeper has a perfect right to expect you to expend your money in his place of business.

"He lives here, pays taxes, contributes generously to various funds both for charity and art, and takes a vast interest in the material progress of the community.

"If his prices, in your opinion, are too high, tell him so. Show him the error of his way.

"Sending money to mail-order concerns helps the place where you reside nor one whit.

"If you do not happen to see on display what you desire, do not assume that he does not carry the object, but ask for it.

"Spend your money at home — where it will do most good.

"Read 'Pine Cone' ads."

A glance at the Pine Cone ads of that issue conveys the information that C. O. Goold had autos for hire, in addition to conducting a livery, hauling, storage, hay and grain business. F. S. Schweninger of the Carmel Bakery and Grocery announced that "we carry J. H. N. and Sunkist Goods". Fred Leidig was dealing in wood, coal,

EVENING IN TUJUNGA

The somber bells of evening
Ring on the valley rim,
Trembling off in a silence
Far as a shepherd's hymn.
Over the blue San Gabriels,
Capped with white and gold,
Flocks of lamb-clouds hurry
The smoking field to the fold.
Now the stream grows weary
Of symphony in flight,
Giving the scant musicians
Sonata overnight.
Mount Josephine with sundown
Rouges her cheeks in red,
And draws the covers of darkness
Over her magdalen head.
Houring day is a minute,
The years to a day belong,
For ever the spell is passing,
Ever the call is strong.
The bells of night are ringing,
Far as a shepherd's hymn,
Tremblinf off in silence
Below the valley rim.

—Gordon W. Norris.

A HOUSE'S SHADOW

Who lives in this eerie blue shadow house
Too fragile to shelter even a mouse?
Is there a casement to filter the moon,
Or phantom hearth for a cricket's thin tune?
And while the neighbors remain unaware,
Who walks up and down its spectral, dim stair?
When the sun and moon are under the hill,
And the wraith-house vanishes, roof and sill,
Where does its shadowy, strange tenant go
As quiet as mist, as light as snow?

—Willa Russell.

ON HEARING TSCHAIKOWSKY'S CONCERTO IN B-FLAT MINOR

The trees go marching down the years,
And all the lovely flowers become as stars
above this grandeur—
The mists roll back, and through the long corridors you walk — a silver shard of flame, and in the darkness,
stars begin their chant,
through eons of lost twilights,
blue with ghost-dreams.

Great music shakes the world,
And all the trees and flowers fade away
And leave you there — one trembling star.

—Edythe Hope Genee.

Have You Read . . . ?

By Edward W. Cochrane

My idea of a good book is one that is instructive and informative as well as entertaining. I believe too many people are not familiar with the community or the state in which they live. They should know their own state, its resources, and its history. All of these things can be gained from reading good books, many of which have splendid historical backgrounds.

A book that fills this requirement nicely is The Cup and The Sword by Alice Tisdale Hobart. This presents the lives and loves of a large, fascinating family in four generations, but it also gives a splendid history of the wine industry in the San Joaquin and Napa valleys — one of the largest industries in our section of California — with which most people are not familiar, but should be if they are to live here. This novel is of universal interest, brilliantly conceived and executed and is a comprehensive study of American life.

Another splendid story is Immortal Wife by Irving Stone, the chief character of which is Mrs. Jesse Benton Fremont, daughter of Thomas Hart Benton, one of the first United States senators from Missouri. Mrs. Fremont came to California early in her interesting life and was influential in California history. Her activities and accomplishments, splendidly portrayed, are inspiring. It is a beautiful love story of faith, patience and understanding by a wife of extremely strong character.

The philosophy that flows from the prolific pen of Martin Flavin, Carmel author and playwright, in Mr. Littlejohn and Journey In The Dark is worthy of careful study. Both books are extremely interesting and they give one a complete picture of the character and thoughts of a famous writer who has done most of his work in Carmel for the past twenty-five years. Journey In The Dark was awarded the $10,000 Harper prize for the best manuscript in 1944 and is a splendid story of a typical American in the great melting pot.

Now let use drift back a few years. Acquaint yourself with Alaska in those early days of the gold rush by reading The Spoilers by Rex Beach. This story has been made into motion pictures three times, which speaks volumes for its interest. It tells of the life in Alaska of the first husband of Mrs. Rex Beach, who was killed in Alaska during the gold rush. Some time later Mrs. Beach married Rex and told him the story of her first husband's career in the mining camps. He wrote it and it became his masterpiece. Rex told me this part of the story while I was a guest in his home in central Florida a few years ago.

Our most successful business men will tell you that you are lost completely when you lose your sense of humor. For real American humor allow me to recommend the stories of my closest friend for twenty-five years in the newspaper game — Damon Runyon — who was proclaimed by the late Arthur Brisbane to be America's greatest reporter.

The surest cure for the blues that I know of is a yarn from Guy and Dolls, Blue Plate Special, The Best of Runyon and others of his books, all of which contain a series of short stroies, such as Lady For A Day and Little Miss Marker, which were two of the best money makers yet produced on the screen. Runyon is a master of Broadway slang, with a style that cannot be imitated. His characters are living persons he encountered in his rambling along Broadway, New York, in his thirty years of newsapaper work on The Big Street. Whether you ever were in New York or not his stories are more than worth while. He has been named by many literary geniuses as the successor to Mark Twain.

A survey I once conducted when I was supervising sports editor of the Hearst newspapers from coast to coast, showed that ninety-six percent of Americans are interested in some kind of sports. Of these, I found twenty percent are inter-

Koreans Not Ready For Democracy, Miss Niesley Tells Wayfarer Group

There is much in the life and customs of the Koreans to remind one of conditions and customs of Bible times in Palestine, Miss Margaret Niesley told the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer on Tuesday afternoon. The long robes worn by the people are reminiscent of the early Hebrews, the women carry vessels of water on their heads, and harvesting and threshing grain are done much as in ancient times. Miss Niesley, head of social studies in Salinas high school, taught for three years in the school for American children in Pyang in northern Korea, the second largest city in the country.

Korea's civilization is much older than that of Japan, and is probably derived from China, with which it has much in common, particularly in the solidarity of the family and in veneration for old age. The people as a whole are very poor, especially under domination of the Japanese since 1905. Most of them live in small houses made with mud walls and almost no furniture, and sleep on the floor. The primitive stove is out doors, with the flue running under the floor of the house giving the only heat available. The warm spot over this pipe is the seat of honor. Woman's lot is not very happy, her life being one of drudgery and privation. Bearing a son brings some amelioration, and when she becomes a mother-in-law she achieves some honor.

The country has long been considered a good missionary field, said Miss Niesley, and yet only three per cent of the people have embraced Christianity, although they are not unfriendly to the missionaries. Their religion is chiefly animism, with great fear of evil spirits and many superstitious practices to ward off their evil visitations. Christianity frees them from these fears, yet their superstitious practices are hard to overcome. She told of a country-women's class held for ten days in the spring in the Presbyterian compound of Pyang, which was attended by women some of whom walked forty miles to reach the school, and some even came one hundred miles. During the ten days they were housed in the dormitories of the compound with 1700 women attending.

Early in the 1930's the Japanese began to clamp down on the schools and the missionaries, and many were forced to leave if they refused to make obeisance to the Shinto shrines. In 1940 the American children and most of the adults returned to this country, and those who remained were returned on the first trip of the Gripsholm. A few of the missionaries had suffered seriously at the hands of the Japanese. Asked whether the people were ready for self government in present world conditions, Miss Niesley said she thought not, yet she did not wish to pose as an authority on the matter.

Two very interested listeners to the talk were Mrs. A. V. Arnold, wife of the general of the Seventh Division, in the American occupation zone, who wanted to know about the country where her husband is serving, and Mrs. L. J. Stewart, whose husband also is on duty in Korea. Mrs. Stewart showed some interesting photographs of people and scenes in the country which she had received from General Stewart.

Opening the program of the afternoon, Mrs. Alta Dale, of the Carmel high school faculty, played two delightful 'cello solos, two movements of a sonata by Henri Eccles, and a Minuet by Haydn. Mr. Frank McLain accompanied her at the piano. Devotions were given by Mrs. Charlotte Morgan. Mrs. Grace Howden arranged the program. —L.L.T.

Abraham Lincoln

Do you know the life of Abraham Lincoln? If you don't I will tell it to you.

One day many years ago in a log cabin a baby boy was born. It was February. 12, 1809. The boy was Abraham Lincoln. The cabin was near Hogenville in Hardin County. Nancy Lincoln, his mother, had one child already. This child was Sarah Lincoln. Nancy Lincoln had been Nancy Hanks before she was married. Abe's father's name was Thomas. They moved to Indiana in 1816.

When Abe was nine his mother died from milk sickness which was quite common among pioneers. Soon after, Thomas Lincoln married again to Sarah Johnson. In 1830 they moved to Illinois. Sarah was very loving and affectionate to Abe and his sister. She had three children of her own.

Lincoln grew to be a tall, strong boy. He loved books and once walked six miles to borrow one.

He went into partnership with a storekeeper when he was twenty-two. They failed. Then he went into business for himself and failed again. He was elected to congress in 1846. He became president in 1860. Our nation honors him as the man who freed the slaves and saved the Union.

—Diana Horne, 6th grade.

A Bad Boy Who Turned Out Good

Once upon a time there was a bad boy. He lived in a New York town. All he did was to make other people unhappy. He was always cross and mean. This boy was an orphan and there was nobody around to teach him right from wrong.

One day when he was walking down the river road he heard someone call for help. He stayed right where he was. In a moment his conscience bothered him as never before. He sprang to his feet and ran to the scene. There in the water was a little boy about five years old. He had wandered away from school and fallen into the icey water. The bad boy pulled him out and took him back to the school.

Because he had saved the boy's life he was adopted by a couple and lived happily ever after.

—Eugene McFarland, 6th grade.

Tom's Ice-cream Store

Every year Tom grew fonder of ice-cream until, at the advanced age of eight, he made up his mind to keep an ice-cream parlor when he grew up.

One day when he was about ten a strange thing happened. His father bought an ice-cream parlor. Tom was so surprised. The next day was Saturday. Tom went down to the new store. He liked it very much. He asked his father if he could help get it ready. His father told him to put on an apron and start cleaning the floors. Tom did this.

Later on when Tom was grown up, his father died. He supported his mother by running the store. He called it "Tom's Ice-cream Store". —Susan Stoney, 6th grade.

Water Company Plans Extensive Improvements

Resuming its pre-war program of improvements, a total of $400,000 will be spent by the California Water & Telephone Co., reports manager C. M. Goldsworthy. Included will be a new filter plant, replacement of 7,000 feet of old 18 inch pipe with new 30 inch pipe, and new 18 inch pipe to serve Cannery Row. Transmission lines are to be cleaned, mains sterilized by a new method—to prevent recurrence of objectionable conditions.

This post-war budget will bring total expenditures under present management to more than $1,400,000. Due to war conditions, increased consumption of water had amounted to 50 per cent since 1939, a period when new materials were impossible to secure. Though the water has been safe, certified by health authorities, its taste and odor condition have not been satisfactory but it will be corrected by installation of the new filter plant.

Adequate future water supply is assured, Mr. Goldsworthy says; added storage facilities and pumping plants and well will be built as required. Expert engineers and geologists have thoroughly studied the location of further impounding facilities, and construction is planned as soon as warranted.

Eighteen employees have been added to the company's staff since the first of this year, all but two of whom are returned service men.

Demo Women Discuss National and Local Wages, Employment

The Carmel Women's Democratic Club met last Friday at the home of Mrs. Paul Low to discuss the latest developments in Full-employment.

Mrs. J. M. Rigdon, speaking of the national scene, said, "The public is beginning to realize that there is a definite relationship between wages, profits and prices. The only way we can ward off depressions is through keeping wages up and prices down, so that workers can buy the products of industry. Increased production with a steady market for the goods produced will bring prosperity to labor and management alike. Low wages, as well as unemployment would threaten that prosperity."

In reviewing the local employment situation, Miss Agnes Shand reported that there is definitely more unemployment on the peninsula now than there was ten weeks ago, mostly among the unskilled workers.

Mrs. Paul Low described a meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee which she attended in Fresno last month, and a dinner given by the County Central Committee at the Pilot in Monterey.

"I Like It Here Because People Are Individualistic," Says Aldaz, Teacher, Traveller, Cosmopolite — Individualist

BY PARKER KIMBALL

"Now we are seeing the importance of learning one another's language," said Senor Juan Aldaz. Difficult, as we groped for words, not to think of the task of uniting a world of nations understanding each other's national egos no better than their respective national tongues.

For over an hour, Senor Aldaz and I had been having pretty tough hiking through fields of literature, politics, and social philosophy, alternating Spanish and English — much of the while on a verbal treadmill, our linguistic proficiencies being about on a par. To cap it, we had just anti-climaxed a brisk argument by discovering that we agreed perfectly. If international statesmen, leaning upon their interpreters, interchange ideas no more clearly than this, Lord help the UNO working committees!

As a regular member of Senor Aldaz' bi-weekly Spanish classes of the Adult Education program at Sunset School, I had had no previous chance to discuss with him topics more cosmic than whether the book was "alli" (there) or "alla" (also there). However, in the classroom, his deft tongue-tip juggling of Goya, Mozart, Dostoevski, and Shinto-ism, an artesian source of anecdote coupled with a flair for pantomime, and a mental cellar well stocked with extra-dry humor, set him apart as a pedagogue.

Neither is he a library-bred cosmopolitan — schooled in the University of Madrid, world traveled, a former soldier of the Spanish Republican Army and a Spanish division attached to the French in North Africa. Aldaz came to the United States seven years ago, settling in New York, where he worked dubbing in Spanish dialogue for American movies, taught Henry Wallace the Spanish he used on his South American junket. He wants to become a naturalized citizen.

"The United States, to me, is the hope of the world," he says. "It is too bad to find so much discontent and unrest in this land which has everything, though, of course, it is part of a nervous world. The middle-class working man of Europe looks at the United States through the movies and sees your average man's automobile, his comfortable house, his refrigerator, and imagines himself living the same life in the role of a minor lord. His own life is really very simple and prosaic."

I suggested that this may have manifested itself by now in widespread envy or an international inferiority complex such has created much antagonism to the United States throughout Latin America.

"I don't believe so," he replied. "I think it's more one of wonderment and a positive desire to have the same things. This is part of the great social cataclysm in Europe today. On the other hand, the European (and the Latin American) thinks you live too materialistically and are spiritually and socially very immature."

I suggested that this was because we have been too busy creating and growing up physically to develop a national taste for the arts of idleness.

"That is so," he agreed, "and proven by the fact that already America is developing her arts and acquiring a taste for spiritual (syn: our loosely-defined 'cultural') pursuits. Carmel, in its common interest in these things, is the most European city I have seen in the United States. I like the people because they are so individualistic. In other cities of this country every member of a small community looks, dresses, talks, acts alike and conforms. Here, most of the people lead the life they do because they like it — not because they are moulded to it."

In describing the people of Carmel, Aldaz unconsciously sketched a portrait of himself, which may be another reason why the "individualists," will be attracted to the Spanish classes, held three times a week at Sunset, Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. for advanced students, Wednesdays for beginners.

We Should Police Germany For A Generation—Dr. May

"I think the United States made a very tragic mistake in believing that Japan was enemy No. 1 and Germany enemy No. 2. We were taught to hate the Japanese. When Japan was defeated, little hate was left for the Germans, and I think the Germans deserved more hatred than the Japanese and I know the Japanese almost as well as the Germans".

Developing this argument before the Carmel Forum, Monday, Jan. 25th, Dr. Harry S. May, author and lecturer, stated that although hatred of foreigners is part of Shintoism and the average Japanese is a good fighter for his emperor, it is in Germany that the spirit of aggression has been fostered for eight hundred years. The last two centuries, he continued, have produced not only war leaders such as Bismark, Frederick the Great and Wilhelm Second, but also imperialist-minded philosophers such as Nietzsche and Hegel.

Mr. Henry Morgenthau's proposal that Germany should become the problem child of the United Nations is the only realistic one, stated Dr. May. And this is the plan followed so far in the American zone of occupation, he continued, with factories destroyed, large holdings divided up, and an attempt made to stabilize the German agricultural economy by furnishing seeds, fertilizer, etc.

But Dr. May emphasized that if Germany is to go democratic, England must not be allowed to rebuild her interests in the Rhine and Ruhr sections, and the United States must remain in Germany for at least one generation. Dr. May pointed out that two timid attempts at establishing a democracy had been made in Germany, after the Revolutions of 1848, and again after their defeat in 1918. But the feeble efforts were doomed to wither and die for lack of encouragement from France, England and the United States, who Dr. May feels were not really interested in seeing Germany go democratic.

The same situation exists today to a certain extent, the speaker declared, as England fears and distrusts Russia and might consider an armed Germany a bulwark against Communism.

Dr. May stated that the Russians' method of occupation in her zone of defeated Germany is to put everybody to work, a method highly commended by Dr. May. Many men have been taken to the cities which they destroyed to work on repair and restoration, "one of the best educational methods to make an honest citizen out of a beast". Also by this means the German people, for the first time in their history, are learning the nature and character of another nation and how to cooperate and work with another people.

The speaker pointed out in conclusion that another thing has come to the aid of Russia which the United States, England and France has been slow to realize and that is that "capitalism in Germany is dead". "What is being brought about in Europe today is a New Deal for Europe. You cannot continue European history where Hitler left off in 1933. What is being done in Europe is planned economy and wherever you have planned economy you have no capitalism."

Dr. May feels that Nazism is still very much alive in Germany and that the prospects for quick development of the democratic processes are very dark.

Planning Commission Not Yet Committed On Carmel Slough

Though the County Planning Commission discussed informally whether or not the Carmel River Mouth should be "improved" or left as a primitive area following its acquisition as part of the State Park system (It has been placed in No. 1 priorities in the county's shore line acquisition plan) the commission did not take definite action in the matter, as the topographical maps of areas to be acquired had not been completed at the time of the meeting, January 28.

When the maps are ready to send into state headquarters, the recommendations of the commission will accompany them. It had been expected that the maps would be ready for last meeting, but the completing of the survey had been delayed. Next meeting is set for Monday, February 25.

Planning to Build this Summer?

When you are making plans for a new home or for the remodelling of your present home, be "fussy" about the capacity of your gas furnace, and the location of the heat outlets, the cold-air return and the wall thermostat. This is most important.

P. G. & E. RECOMMENDS

If you are planning a new home or modernizing your present one and you need help on house heating, come in and consult with one of our gas heating specialists. He will work with you, your architect and heating contractor to help you get a heating installation tailored to your home and your pocketbook. Use this Free Service. It will save you time, worry and money.

You will want your home comfortably warm on the chilly days of the cold-peak weather season. You will want plenty of heat, rapidly circulated for quick comfort in every room. You will get this from an automatic, forced-air Gas Heating System that is properly installed, and when you use such a heating plant, you will save money every heating hour.

When cost estimates come in and you look them over, choose the heating system that is engineered to do a first-class job of heating your home. What you might save by "skimping", you will pay for later on with less heating comfort, quickly worn-out equipment and higher fuel bills.

Remember, a furnace will produce only so much heat; it cannot be forced beyond the capacity its builders gave it.

Must We Avoid Being Colorful?

BY WILLIAM JUSTEMA

The decorating job the modern painter Jean Varda is doing for a restaurant on the wharf at Monterey has given rise to some criticism.

I daresay there are politico-economic angles—there usually are, in such controversies—but if we try to keep the discussion on esthetic grounds, do the objections not simply amount to this: that no one before, hereabouts, has used color as creatively as Varda? Now whether or not it is proper to exhibit bold, singing color in public places and in the open air is, admittedly, something to discuss. No one on the peninsula can object to the picturesque, the colorful. Apparently, however, we must avoid being too colorful.

Let us look around us. Let us look, for instance, at the neon signs in Monterey and on the wharf there; at the advertisement of a certain soft drink on every other building; at the large metal tanks for gas and oil gleaming at the end of each vista. Are we to assume that these strike just the right note?

Either that—or we don't see them.

Which is the case exactly.

We have got so used to signs and to ugly facilities of all sorts that they no longer trouble us because we don't see them. But we do see what Varda is doing. And we should. This is why . . .

We have at least two great painters on the peninsula (Hansen and O'Shea), and, as frequent visitor, perhaps the world's most notorious one (who, for once, shall be nameless—), but, among our many distinguished residents Varda is quite unique by virtue of his particular combination of qualities which are, so to speak, culminating in the job on Fisherman's Wharf.

In the first place he is a fisherman himself, originally off the islands of Greece. The local fishermen are his friends. They wish this project well.

Then he is a man of great good will, endlessly generous of himself. Indeed, such is his flair for living, no artistically-aware person considers a local visit complete without an hour spent at the Red Barn. And it is not only to see his pictures, nor the ingenious, casual background: people warm themselves at the man as at a bright steady fire.

But over and above these things is his true stature as an artist. I have known his work, now, for a decade—first through reproductions, then in San Francisco—and have, on occasion, wished it were richer, deeper, or more varied. Sometimes I have mentally dismissed him as a gay, a lightweight Braque; a very minor member of the School of Paris abstractionists.

I was wrong.

The work he is doing at present shows not only his typical verve, but an almost incredible invention, as one surprising effect follows another, and each yields visual pleasure, once the initial shock of astonishment has passed. Here, among us, a great color-virtuoso is working in the vein opened, for moderns, by Gauguin and Matisse but with none of their self-consciousness nor reliance on subject-matter. I suppose the outside of the building will weather and fade: the inside, I hope, will never change, and such light as Varda specifies will always illuminate it. For although it is called a restaurant, what it really is, is a masterpiece achieved with simplicity and directness by means of paint and man's imagination.

And if that isn't in the "tradition" of Monterey—it ought to be.

Ellsworth Walstons On M. A. C. Program

The Musical Art Club is now making arrangements for the second concert of its 1946 season. On Sunday afternoon, February 17, at three o'clock, at the Carmel High School Music Room, the Club will present Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Walston in a series of solos and duets. They will be accompanied by Mrs. Mildred Randolph Strand in a program of classical as well as modern work.

Virginia Treadwell Walston has made frequent appearances in the Greek Theatre at Berkeley, and with the Northern California Symphony, also in madrigal groups, and she is soloist of the All Souls Episcopal Church at Berkeley. Her husband has taken part in oratorial productions and has appeared in the Woodminister Bowl, with the Oakland Orpheus and the University Chorus. At present he is soloist of the First Presbyterian Church in Oakland.

The program will be published later but members of the Club may now reserve the date and may plan to invite their house guests or to supply guest cards to other friends whom they want to give the privilege of attending this concert.

Southern Pacific is happy to announce that plans are under way for the

between San Francisco and Portland

We are happy to tell you that plans are under way for the first streamliners in Southern Pacific's postwar program—the Shasta Daylights. We promise you that we will spare no expense to make these the finest and most luxurious streamlined coach trains ever constructed.

Leaving San Francisco-Oakland and Portland in the morning and arriving in the late evening, the diesel-powered Shasta Daylights will speed daily in each direction over Southern Pacific's famous Shasta Route—certainly one of the most magnificent scenic trips in all the world.

Each seat on the Shasta Daylights will have its own individual window, and these windows will be of unique design—much taller than the windows on any other train. Through these enormous windows you will see the Sacramento Valley, Lassen Peak, Mt. Shasta and the vast lake behind Shasta Dam, the Cascade Mountains, Odell Lake, the lovely Willamette Valley.

We have given our ideas to the designers of the car building companies, who are now working out the details and technical specifications. As soon as bids are received, we will place orders for actual construction of the Shasta Daylights for delivery, we expect, before the end of the year.

A faster streamlined CASCADE

Our plans include streamlining the Cascade, making it a de luxe overnight sleeping car train between San Francisco and Portland. Based on designs now being worked out, orders will be placed for triple unit articulated cars for the Cascade similar to the ones on our Lark between Los Angeles and San Francisco. (Each unit consists of a lounge car, a dining car and a kitchen car.)

As fast as the manufacturers can deliver new streamlined sleeping cars they will be placed in service on the Cascade. This, we hope, will be early in 1947. The Cascade, as well as other trains, will be speeded up as soon as the present heavy traffic load eases, and before we receive the new equipment.

Ritschel, O'Shea Win Prizes In Oakland Art Exhibition

Carmel artists took first and third prize in the American Artists' Professional League Second Annual Oil Painting Exhibition at the Oakland Art Gallery, which opened February 3 and will run to February 20.

William Ritchel's marine, Denizens of Another Realm, was awarded first prize, and John O'Shea's lanscape, Blue Lagoon, won third prize. San Francisco artist, Joan Thoren received second prize for her snow scene, Carter's Barn. A purchase prize was awarded Howard E. Smith and Thomas McGlynn of Pebble Beach headed the honorable mention list.

Judges were: Spencer Macky, President of the California College of Arts and Crafts, William Clapp, Curator of the Oakland Art Gallery, and Artists James Holden and Louis Siegriest.

Following the Oakland showing, the exhibition will go on a tour of the California galleries.

hay and grain; R. B. Reardon offered plumbing, tinning and electrical work; M. Slevin had books, stationery and kodaks for sale. The reader was admonished "when writing to your friends, suggest Pine Inn as a desirable stopping place"; the Misses Guichard were selling notions, dry goods, and millinery. Leidig Bros. was, "Carmel's Big Busy Store", and for information concerning property in and about Carmel, one should address Carmel Development Company. There was a twenty-one inch space on the back page that some advertiser might have had, and thus gone down in Carmel history as a sponsor of the infant Pine Cone. Instead, Editor Overstreet filled the gap with a poem by Herbert Heron, who apparently was as good-natured then about helping the Pine Cone out in a pinch as he is now. It was entitled, Ballad of the Pine Cone, and I dare say Bert Heron has written better verse, but none with sentiment more acceptable on that occasion, nor on this:

After three stanzas of happy comparison between the fruit of the pine tree and the fruit of William Overstreet's press, the poem concludes with:

"The Carmel Pine Cone bursts upon the scene,
"With youth and sap, with color, fruit and all;
"Our local press, our weekly magazine . . . ."

P.E.O. Holds Meeting

Members of the P.E.O. Chapter H.T. held their regular semi-monthly meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. W. H. Hamilton. A study of the Constitution and Roberts' Rules of Order was the principal business. Mrs. McDonald of Pacific Grove reported on the reciprocity meeting held last Wednesday in Santa Cruz.

CWC General Meeting

Following a stimulating talk by Charles De Vault (reported elsewhere in this issue) tea was served members of the Carmel Woman's club at their general meeting this week at Girl Scout House. The room was attractively decorated by Miss Flora Hartwell with calla lilies and dramatic arrangements of the long green spears and brilliant red blooms of aloe, combined with great rosettes of hen-and-chickens in the same tone.

Hostesses for the tea were Mrs. Robert Satchell, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Frederick Gilchrist, Mrs. Leo Harris and Mrs. Blanche O'Neill, and pouring tea were Mrs. Mary K. Solari and Mrs. Leon Fisher.

Young Churchmen to Meet

All Saints' Church of Carmel will have eight representatives at the diocesan convention of the young people of the Diocese of California. Known as the Cenvention of the House of Young Churchmen, it will be held at Trinity Church, San Francisco, February 16 and 17. Delegates elected by the younger members of All Saints' Parish are Sue Dekker, Pat Bacon, Jim Snavely, Dan Bell, and Penelope Kerr. Alternates include Pat Casey, June Kocher and Constance Melchior.

Jimmy O'Brien In Hollywood

Jimmy O'Brien, Irish tenor from Ken Murray's Blackouts, who was until recently stationed at Fort Ord, is once more singing in civilian clothes and again with the Blackouts. His first job when he got out of the army was entertaining Carmelites at Mission Ranch last week, after which he headed for Hollywood.

Warshawsky Portrait Wins Prize

Abel Warshawsky, one of several Peninsula artists represented at the annual Santa Cruz exhibit, has been awarded the portrait prize for his Old Sea Captain. Others from this area showing among the hundreds of pictures in the Santa Cruz Auditorium included Martin Baer, Arthur Hill Gilbert, Laura Maxwell, William Watts, Marjory Pegrim, and Dr. Margaret Levick. The exhibit is to close February 10.

Chandler Smith in Carmel

Chandler Smith, for the past three and a half years in the Navy, was released this week and is back in Carmel with his wife and two boys, Timmie and Stanley. Mrs. Smith has been in Carmel two and half years, coming down from Sacramento where her husband was supervising auditor for the Board of Equalization before entering the service. They will make their home permanently in Carmel and are getting ready to build on Guadalupe between Fifth and Sixth. They fell in love with Carmel when here on their honeymoon and had planned ever since to make it home. Mr. Smith, who will do public accounting, has opened an office in Monterey.

Soldiers Have Party

The Thirty-Eighth Detachment Headquarters Special Troops Seventh Corps, together throughout the war and now awaiting de-activation Feb. 15, at Fort Ord, took over the Mission Ranch Monday night for a grand farewell party. Ninety enlisted men, officers, and WACs made sure that the occasion for which they had saved $800 lived up to expectations. They provided their own entertainment, having a gay evening of song and fun. Captain J. P. Brougham was the honored guest.

Cmdr. Goddard Here With Wife

Commander David Goddard, son of Mrs. Ella S. Goddard, arrived home in Carmel Tuesday night with his wife and two girls, following their drive from New York via the southern route. In the Merchant Marine since his graduation from Monterey High School, 1932, Commander Goddard has been assigned to the Alameda Training Station as executive officer. Prior to this assignment he had been on the Cape Frio, one of the newest training ships for the Merchant Marine, and he had also served two years as executive officer at the training base in Saint Petersburg, Fla. He expects to leave Saturday for Alameda, but his wife and children will remain in Carmel for the time being.

Mrs. Taylor in Alhambra

Mrs. Daisy B. Taylor went to Alhambra, Wednesday, called there by the illness of her brother-in-law, L. W. Bickel, a frequent visitor to Carmel. She planned to remain about a week.

Eight Carmelites in AVC

Eight Carmel World War II veterans already have joined the American Veterans Committee, national organization now forming a Monterey Peninsula chapter. First meeting of the local group will be held at 8 p. m., Friday evening at the El Estero USO in Monterey, when organizational plans will be discussed. Provisional officers of the local AVC are Robert Schneider, Monterey, chairman; Joseph Schoeninger, Carmel, vice-chairman; Al Roman, Carmel, secretary; and George Straub, Carmel, treasurer.

"The AVC differs from existing veterans outfits in that its members are all World War II vets, and both men and women of the armed forces as well as the merchant marine are welcome," Schneider said.

"Activities of the AVC are concentrated on such veterans' problems as re-employment, housing, and 'breaks' under the G. I. Bill of Rights, rather than on social affairs. We are not a 'grabbing' outfit, since we don't believe a bonus or handouts constitute a solution to the problems of returning servicemen. All veterans on the Peninsula interested in the new organization are invited to attend the meeting Friday."

J. W. Thomas Back from Pacific

J. W. Thomas, until recently with the Navy in the Philippines, has returned to the West Coast and will remain in Carmel for the next month with his wife and baby. Formerly with the PG&E in Northern California, he expects to return to work for that company.

Joan de Forest to Marry

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hornby, Carmel, announced this week the engagement of their daughter, Joan de Forest, to John McLean Ashton, son of Mrs. Bruce McLean Ashton of Salinas and of John Oliver Ashton, Greenwich, Conn. Miss Hornby attended the Douglas School, Pebble Beach, and Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn. She is the sister of Mrs. John de Peyster, Townsend Hills, Raymond Hornby, Jr., and Lieut. Col. David A. Hornby.

Mr. Ashton attended the Menlo Junior College and was recently discharged from the Navy, where he served as a lieutenant (j.g.) in the naval air corps. The marriage will be this Spring.

Garden Section

Mr. Alex Eddy will speak at the next meeting of the Garden Section of the Carmel Woman's Club. It will be held Friday, February 15, at two o'clock at the Carmel U.S.O. Mr. Eddy's name on the club calendar always creates much interest. His subject will be The When and How of Pruning. He decided on this subject after noticing how people are mutilating their shrubs through ignorance of the proper way to prune. The members are asked to bring written questions for the question box. This will enable Mr. Eddy to give valuable instruction on many things.

Bundy's Party

Celebrating his second anniversary, little Bundy Lansdowne—christened Zachary Fenton—had his friends in for a party on Monday afternoon at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Fenton Grigsby. He had a birthday cake with candles and all fixin's. Bundy and his mother are staying with Mrs. Grigsby until their new home in San Diego is completed and they can have a place to live. His daddy is Commander F. Mac Kinnon Lansdowne, recently appointed hull superintendent at the San Diego Navy Yard which is busy building destroyers.

Party For Seth Ulman

Mrs. Nelson Miles Leoni entertained last night at her home up Carmel Valley, Palisades, in honor of her son, Lt. Seth Powers Ulman, who has just returned from Germany, where he was stationed with the 47th Medical Battalion near Frankfurt. During his service Lt. Ulman has written several articles for the Pine Cone, one on the American march on Rome, which appeared in the Sept. 1, 1944, issue, and a description of the joys and sorrows of the "displaced people" at Michelback, near Frankfurt, which was printed in the Pine Cone issue of November 16.

University Women

An evening on Russia will occupy the members of the American Association of University Women, Monterey Peninsula Branch, at the next meeting on February 20, at 8:00 p. m. at the home of Miss Gertrude Rendtorff on Camino Real. Reports on several recent books about this much discussed ally will be given by members of the association. Miss Harriet Baker of Pacific Grove is president and Miss Rendtorff is program chairman.

Anne McElroy-Lieut. Fry Wed

Miss Anne McElroy, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Marion McElroy, Carmel, was married last Friday in San Francisco to Second Lieut. Robert Fry, now with the Quartermasters Corps at Fort Ord. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gump (Agnes Fraser) of San Francisco stood up with the couple, and Malcolm Fraser, Carmel, gave the bride away. The couple spent their brief honeymoon in Hollywood, during which they attended The Drunkard as guests of its producer, Galt Bell. They have returned to the Peninsula, and Mrs. Fry is now at the Pine Inn.

The bride was graduated from Carmel High School in 1944 and also attended the Dominican Convent at San Rafael. She has participated in local dramatic productions and is a Nurses Aide. Lieut. Fry studied law at the University of Indiana and before the war was active in law, banking, and politics. When he leaves military service, Lieutenant and Mrs. Fry probably will make their home in Indianapolis.

Jack Pelton Back Home

Jack Pelton, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Pelton, returned home to Carmel last week after his discharge from the Army. A staff sergeant, he was in service three and a half years, spending over two years in the England, France, and Germany theater. For the most part of his work was in the medical laboratory with the bacteriologists and cerologists of the sanitary corps. He was stationed near London during the Nazis' buzz-bomb attacks, but he had been transferred to the Cherbourg area in France before the V-2 bombs started hitting the british capital. At Cherbourg he became acquainted with the Nazis' land-based guns which struck nearby in an effort to destory Allied radar emplacements. His last assignment was in Marburg, Germany, at the station hospital. A graduate of Monterey High School, Sgt. Pelton was at Salinas Junior College before entering service. He plans to enter the University of California to study public health and bacteriology.

His brother, Coxwain Dick Pelton, 20, is still in Navy uniform, but he's hoping to be back home in a month or so. In service two and a half years, he is at present on Samar in the Philippines. Dick is a graduate of Carmel High School and probably will attend Salinas Junior College when released from service.

Capt. H. H. Haynes in Carmel

Captain and Mrs. H. H. Haynes recently arrived from Berkeley for a month's stay in Carmel. They are at Mrs. Daisy Taylor's.

John Metcalf, Jr., Discharged

A/S John S. Metaclf, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Metcalf, Carmel, has been honorably discharged from naval service at the separation center, Bainbridge, Md., his family learned this week. In service thirty-one months, he has been undergoing medical training. At the University of California for his pre-medical work and later at the San Leandro Naval Hospital, he was most recently at the University of Maryland and will continue his studies there. A graduate of Monterey High School, he worked for the Carmel Drug store before entering service. His mother is at present in Rochester, Minn., awaiting train reservations for the West Coast.

High School Elects Officers

Martin Irwin last week was elected student body president of Carmel High School for the spring semester. Others voted into office include Art Templeman, vice president; Suzita Cecil, secretary; Betty Ryland, commissioner of finance and awards; Dan Bell, commissioner of social affairs; Tom Hefling, commissioner of publicity; Willette Torras and David Wilson, commissioners of boys' and girls' athletics; and Lorraine Harris, commissioner of community relations.

Mr. Donald Craig has been named acting sponsor of student activities at the High School in addition to his teaching of Spanish and English.

Douglas Visits Grandparents

Mrs. William Toombs and Douglas, the latter two years old now and looking very handsome Saturday in a blue hood to match his eyes, and a red jacket, were on the Peninsula this week end visiting Douglas' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Toombs, in Pacific Grove. Douglas' mother, the former Jean Aiken, found time to visit Carmel and look up some of her many friends, made during her residence here two years ago. She now makes her home in San Jose.

Recent Visitor

Norman Yeon of Portland, Ore., was a week-end visitor at the Joseph Schoeninger home, Carmel Point. After three years in the Army, spent chiefly in Alaska, Mr. Yeon was glad to get a glimpse of Carmel's green trees and shrubs. He has many friends on the Monterey Peninsula.

Skillmans Entertain Guests

A tea for thirty guests was given Thursday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. Verne Skillman at their home on Mesa Drive, honoring Mr. and Mrs. Eric Fromm, friends and neighbors of the Skillmans for twenty-five years in Detroit. The Fromms came West to visit their son, Hal, now at Camp Beale. They will leave Carmel Sunday to visit friends in South Pasadena.

Seaweed dolls with expressions of wild glee dressed in table-mats, a bacchante figure in driftwood with streaming hair and seaweed necklace . . . Manuel Valenzuelas has excelled himself in the new window at THE DISCOVERY SHOP, featuring unusual table-mats in subtle tones of grey, green, chartreuse, brown. And if you stray inside, you'll find unique table-decorations, such as ceramic fish with plastic fins and tails, and red glass swans. And primitive wooden trays, carved in Michoacan, Mexico. But what will really take your eye are some enormous copper bowls, which would be marvelous for a stunning floral display.

And speaking of copper, they've gotten a huge shipment of copper and brass in at MERLE'S TREASURE CHEST. Everything from trays, bowls, and plates to exotic pepper-mills and cache-pots. But the most fascinating by far is an early English brass ink-well, at least 100 years old, which sports a joyous-looking bronze bird with outspread wings and tail! The ink-well itself is of crystal, with a faceted, iridescent lid, and is upheld by 4 prongs on brass stand. And there's an odd but attractive object known as a cache-pot (flower-holder to you), a copper pepper-mill with a brass-handle, a sexagonal-shaped tray of beaten copper and many other gleaming pieces too numerous to mention.

Flowers have always been the language of the heart, and what could be more fitting for Valentine's Day than a French nose-gay? Of blue forget-me-nots, mignonette, tiny narcissus, baby rose-buds, violets and other pastel posies, these exquisite old-fashioned bouquets are a specialty of the NB FLOWER SHOP. And another charming fancy to bewitch Milady's heart is the clear plastic boxes to hold Valentine flowers. Oval, square or round, they have silver reflectors which enhance the loveliness of a single camellia, gardenia or orchid. And for those who favor a lasting sweetness, there are small plants, such as tulips, hyacinths, azaleas and daffodils.

The hearts and flowers motif can be found in books too. "Love Poems: Old and New," and "Love's Enchantment," a collection of love-stories, poems and ancient ballads by such notables as Yeats, Tennyson and Mary Webb are in at THE VILLAGE BOOK SHOP. Another gift, this time in gay, rollicking vein, is "Laughing Stock," edited by Bennett Cerf. Only $1.00, it contains 600 of the latest jokes and anecdotes. And for those of a serious turn, Lincoln's Birthday is coming up—"Lincoln the President" by J. G. Randall is the latest biography, and "Lincoln on the Eve of '61" by Henry Villard, a Civil War Correspondent, gives an intimate, stirring picture of the man and his times.

It's true that Cupid's Bow is in the air, but sometimes, even on Valentine's, the celebration is liable to wind-up in a poker game . . . And that's just what they have at FORTIER'S DRUG STORE — a new set of 200 plastic poker chips which come in a handy plastic rack, either in blue or maroon, and it includes two decks of playing cards—all for only $10.95. Best feature of all is that these chips are interlocking, which means they stack without falling down. All 200 of them! The "Smart Set," or the boys and gals in the back-room, might find this a handy gift.

Did you know there were special arrangements of symphonic music for children? At LIAL'S MUSIC SHOP, they have a delightful one of the "Coppelia Ballet Suite." Joyous and sprightly in quality, it includes the Dance of the Automatons, Waltzes and Czardas. And from Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite," there's "Anitra's Dance" and "Hall of the Mountain King," and they've even recorded an abridged version of Beethoven's 5th Symphony, with the 1st movement of Schubert's "Unfinished" on the other side! Idea is, why give them shop-worn melodies when they can have the world's finest masterworks?

But to turn to more mundane matter such as food . . . not that any of the food at the GOURMET, that house of rare delicacies and exotic hors d'oevres, is mundane! The scoop is on bacon and whole smoked hams. Beautiful to behold, they are destined for a brief career, if my own taste is any indication. And more good news, Richardson and Robinson products are coming back again. The excellent quality of this long-established, pre-war firm has been known for years, but it's been impossible to get during the war. And on the wine-list, the GOURMET really excels itself. They have a complete line of marvelous wines from the best vineyards that can be found, such as Beaulieu, and Mente Brothers Wine, and they have imported sherries including such fabulous names as Dry Sack, Sandeman's and Duff-Gordon. Wine for every occasion, with the subtle, seasoned flavor you've been missing. Last but not least, they have mammoth ripe olives, which add just the right touch to cocktail parties and picnics.

Meats are still none too plentiful; but everyone will be glad to know they can find Armour's and Swift's products at TURNEY'S MEAT MARKET again, and the delicacy of the week is smoked beef tongues! Better in flavor than corned or fresh tongues, they're the answer to the party and week end problem.

Something new in slack-suits makes its debut at the COLLEGIATE DRESS SHOP, in Monterey, this week. Including slacks, shorts and blouse, it's of clinging crepe, bare midriff style, and the blouse is long-sleeved in pale green, with contrasting shorts and slacks of black. Another striking item is a "convertible" tennis-dress. Convertible because at one moment you're wearing a gay print suitable for cocktails or the Country Club, and the next, presto, you remove the detachable skirt and are off for a set of tennis!

Lounging pajamas with matching brunch coats in blue, pink and navy polka dots can be found at THE SILVER THIMBLE, as well as polka dot robes in red, blue and navy. But the most dramatic number is an atomic bomb-shell in the way of a midriff pajama for sleeping or lounging. Of silk jersey, it's a wild print against a black background.

They've acquired some real stone gems at JOYCE'S JEWELRY STORE. Among them, the trickiest is called a chatelaine. Two large stones of real white jade suspended on a chain of gold makes it a stunning ornament for evening, or —and here is the tricky part—it can be converted for day-time use into two jade pins, while the chain turns into a bracelet. Of the same type, there is a smaller one with little daggers of moonstone and silver. They also have carnelian, jade and cameo ear-rings, Chinese-carved rings of rose-quartz, jade and carnelian, and the new dangling "drop" ear-rings one in amethyst and seed-pearls, with an amethyst necklace to match, is particularly lovely.

Rugs again! Lots of rugs! Shag rugs, throw rugs, hook rugs and bath-sets! They arrived in a big shipment at THE PIONEER this week. Large-size shags in dusty peach, pale aqua, and natural; bath-sets to match the most brilliant or the most pastel bathroom; throw rugs in every size and every color of the rainbow! But the most intriguing item is unfortunately, also, the rarest—a hand-made hook-rug of early American design from the Carolina mountains. While they last, they're at THE PIONEER next to the post-office.

New arrivals at the THIEVES MARKET will thrill lovers of rare and beautiful antiques. For one thing, there's a pair of exquisite Satsuma vases, in fan and butterfly pattern, and the glaze is the famous crackle glaze found in all Satsuma ware. And there's a Russian samovar, in perfect condition, made of brass, and an early English chafing dish of silvered copper. A charming early French bowl—17th century, in fact—has cups to go with it, and there's even a handsome Napoleon vase which stands 2' 6", is of the well-known Napoleon blue and was made in Austria. Everything in perfect condition and of exceptionally fine quality.

Boys will be boys, and they're always wearing out socks and shorts. So DEREK RAYNE has good news for them this week. He has lots of cotton, striped socks, sizes 9-10½ with elastic tops, at 50c a pair, and knitted (jockey type) shorts in small sizes, suitable for boys of high-school age.

Dene Denny to New York

Dene Denny left for New York Monday morning via plane to see concert and stage production managers relative to the Denny-Watrous attractions which are coming to San Jose. She expects to be gone five days and will return via the Stratoliner.

Boy Scout Show Saturday

Boy Scout Troop 32, sponsored by the Holy Name Society, Carl Bensberg, Scoutmaster, will participate in a Scoutcraft Show in the Monterey High School Gymnasium this Saturday from 2 to 5 p. m. and from 6:45 to 10 p. m. under the auspices of the Carmel, Pacific Grove, and Monterey districts of the Monterey Bay Area Boy Scout Council, member agency of the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest. Scoutmaster Bensberg and his Scouts are working on an exhibit which will feature the Signaling Merit Badge. Those visiting the display will see blinkers, buzzers, signal flags, and other signaling devices made by the boys.

In addition to the Scoutcraft demonstartions there will be a series of Scout games at 2:45 p. m. and a program of Scout skill demonstrations at 8 p. m. Pacific Grove and Monterey Scout units will also have exhibits of many types of Scout handicraft. Booths, the construction of which was arranged for by Joe Fratessa, local Scouter, through the Geyer Construction Company of Monterey, will be set up Friday night and Saturday morning. Admission is free with invitational tickets being given out by the troops.

Mary Griffin Here on Visit

Miss Mary Griffin, niece of Mrs. Edith Griffin, is now in Carmel for an indefimite visit. She is from Croton-on-the-Hudson in New York, and was only recently discharged from the WACs after serving in France. She has visited Carmel before and has many friends here.

Pogges Return from Mexico

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Pogge, owners of the Sea View Inn, welcomed the sight of Carmel last week after a month of somewhat tedious vacationing in Mexico. It was wonderful to be back in a clean community whose water you could drink, they emphasized. Fortunately, most of the hotels had distilled water, and Mexican beer was at a high level; thus, they didn't have to go thirsty. Their car almost went thirsty, however. Gasoline was a major problem in a number of areas, and several times they were nearly left stranded. Even when obtainable, however, the gasoline bordered on kerosene as for quality.

Especially impressive were the beautiful tropical scenes at Fortin and the new volcano near Urupan. One particularly impressive sight at the volcano was the church steeple protruding out of the lava which had destroyed everything for miles around. The Pogges were greatly interested by the great amount of building going on in Mexico City. There was apparently much material available, but prices were outrageous. New tires were also available there for only $70 each, a $50 cut in the price they had been charging before tire rationing ended in the United States.

Colliards Back

Mr. and Mrs. Fernand Colliard, after a trip south to Palm Springs, a junket to the Mexican border, and a visit north to Brookdale in the Santa Cruz mountains, are settling down to a little serious gardening and Spring house repairing in their home in Carmel.

Little Trains

I like the little trains that go so fast.

I rode in one and saw the clouds go past! —Shirley Thiele.

Click-Clack

The shadows on the tracks are black
The stars are icy white,
Click-clack!
The engine says, "Would not you say,
That this will keep me busy all the day?" —Elizabeth Snite.

Fifth Grade

We elected new student body officers for Sunset School. Our new president is Skipper Lloyd, vice president is Kurt von Mier, secretary is Julia Graves, treasurer is Nancy Krupocki, and the sports manager is Mike Rickets. Mike is from our room. —Beverly Bolton.

I once had a dog and his name was Oscar. He would bark all day because he wanted to be loose, but we couldn't let him loose because he was very big and also very playful. He scared little girls when they went by, but he wouldn't bite them. One day he was barking and a policeman complained and said we would have to give him away because we live by the hospital.

We gave him away to someone in Seaside ,and one day they let him loose and he didn't come back. The next day my cousin saw him at the Catholic school in Monterey, and then the next day he was at home. He didn't want to leave us. —Luis Jaramillo.

Yesterday we had a program for Mrs. Uzzell's class. Each child got up in front of the room and gave a little report about what we have been studying about here in school. I gave a talk about how glass was discovered. I was a little bit afraid at first, but after a while I wasn't so afraid. I thought our program was a very good one. —Renee Bedeau.

The night before last Sunset School played Walter Colton School, and I was the one who kept score. The score was Sunset 14, Walter Colton 18. It was a neat game. The captain of the team was Frost. He made ten points by himself. We played four quarters that lasted five minutes each. In the second quarter Johnny De Amaral was knocked down by number 40; so he got a free shot. It was a very exciting game, and everyone was a good sport. —Paul Ricketson.

I have a pretty cat,
And her name is Blackberry.
When she walks, she goes pat, pat,
Just like a tiny fairy.

She likes to climb on top of the house.
I wonder if she'll ever fall.
Never in her life has she caught a mouse,
And I don't think she ever will at all.

—Mary Alice Graves.

Brig Gen. Stewart Given Command Of Seventh In Korea

Brig. General Leroy J. Stewart, whose wife, Mrs. Hascal Stewart, has lived in Carmel since 1941, recently assumed command of the Seventh Infantry Division at Seoul, Korea, it was revealed this week. General Stewart has served with the Hourglass veterans from Attu through the campaigns of Kwajalein Atoll, Leyte Island, Okinawa and the Korean occupation and assumed his new duty after serving as division artillery commander and provost marshall general of all territory in Korea manned by the Seventh.

He joined the Seventh in 1941 at Fort Ord, heading the 75th Horse-Drawn Field Artillery Batallion. Stationed later in Alaska, he became advisor for the division on Aleutian conditions. Shortly thereafter he was assigned as chief of staff of the task force containing units of the Seventh, and then was made chief of staff of the entire division. He served through the battle of Kwajalein in the Marshalls in that capacity, assuming command of the division's artillery in May, 1944. In that capacity he took part in the Leyte and Okinawa campaigns. He has been awarded the Legion of Merit, Silver Star, and Bronze Star.

General Stewart has become well known to the Koreans and has made every effort to introduce them to American ways. Among other things is his unofficial sponsorship of the Korean Boy Scouts in an effort to wean them away from militaristic ways and into channels of activity followed by the Boy Scouts of America.

The General finished at West Point in 1922. He returned to Carmel for six weeks last summer and expects to make his permanent home here upon retirement. He is from Easley, S. C., where his mother still lives.

NOTICE INVITING SEALED BIDS

RESOLUTION NO. 1069

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA:

1. That bids are hereby invited for the granting of an exclusive franchise for the collection and disposal of garbage and waste within the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea for a period of three (3) years beginning on the 21st day of February, 1946 (or within ten (10) days of said date).

2. That sealed bids will be received and opened at an adjourned regular meeting of said City Council at the Council Chambers of said City on Wednesday, February 20th, 1946, at 7:45 o'clock P.M.

3. That each bidder must signify his willingness to maintain, during the term of the said contract, an office in the business district of said City, which shall be kept open during normal business hours and where he may be contacted by persons desiring garbage or waste collection service.

4. That at the time of entering into the contract the successful bidder must file with the City Clerk of said City a surety bond to guarantee the faithful performance of the said contract in the sum of $3,000.00, if executed by a corporation licensed to transact surety business within the State of California, as surety, or in the sum of $6,000.00, if executed by two or more individual sureties.

5. That the said City Council reserves the right to award the bid to the person, firm or corporation submitting what the Council deems to be the best bid, considering the interest and welfare of the residents of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, regardless of whether the same be the highest bid submitted. The City Council reserves the further right to reject any and all bids, to postpone the granting of the said franchise from time to time and to provide in the contract that the said franchise shall be cancellable at the option of the City upon sixty (60) days' notice.

6. The City Clerk is hereby instructed to cause this Resolution to be published as a Public Notice once a week for two (2) successive weeks in the Carmel Pine Cone, beginning with the February 8th, 1946, edition.

PASSED AND ADOPTED BY THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA this 6th day of February, 1946.

CERTIFICATION OF CITY CLERK.

I, the undersigned, City Clerk of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true and correct copy of Resolution No. 1069, which was adopted at a regular meeting of the said Council on the 6th day of February, 1946.

I further certify that upon its passage the foregoing Resolution was signed by the Mayor of the said City and attested by the City Clerk thereof.

Council Refuses Petition Of Carmel Citizens To Keep Roscelli On Job

when it normally would have run until August, 1947.

In reply to the Mayor's accusations that Roscelli had violated the ordinance code in attempting to raise the garbage rates, Campbell said that as he interpreted the ordinance, the rates set forth are minimum, not maximum. This was followed by a lively argument with City Attorney William Hudson, whose interpretation of the ordinance did not agree with that of Mr. Roscelli's attorney, Mr. Campbell.

Eben Whittlesey, among the citizens present on Roscelli's behalf, said he believed the council had nicely glossed over the picture in saying that in its determination to put the contract up for bids, "everybody would start over from scratch with a clean slate in the good old American way." Whittlesey asked on what criteria, other than high bid, would the council determine the winner, and he reminded the council of a former occasion when they had accepted a bid on that criterion from Force and Conlan, and found the garbage concession back in their laps at a critical time.

Other citizens spoke for Roscelli, and the applause indicated that the crowd in the council room was unanimous in its desire to keep Roscelli in possession of his contract. The council came in for criticism because Robert Grey, contender for the Roscelli garbage contract, had bought garbage trucks and painted them white, several months before the cancelling of the Roscelli contract was announced. "How did Grey know the contract was to be put up for bids?" demanded the citizens.

"Anybody could see from the complaints about the garbage service that the contract would be cancelled," hedged the Mayor.

The council tried to stem the tide by injecting the reading of the new ordinance defining garbage containers and clarifying the collection rate, but the spectators insisted that the council act on their request first.

A soothing and tactful speech by Councilman Fred Godwin, strongly implying that when the competitive bids were in, John Roscelli's bid would be given very thoughtful consideration, and that the new ordinance was to Roscelli's advantage, created considerable good will in the audience for Mr. Godwin personally, but did not distract them from the issue, namely, that they didn't want the garbage contract put up for bid in the Good Old American way; but for the council to rescind its action in cancelling the contract and give Roscelli a chance to carry on now that he would have his son out of the Army to help him and now that some of the war time difficulties had eased.

The council, pushed to the point of saying "yes" or "no", said "no." declared the concession open to bids and read its new ordinance to the disgruntled audience.

Whether or not the new ordinance is an increase or decrease in garbage collection rates is impossible to judge, since there is little basis of comparison, owing to the confusion in the old ordinance, which contained errors, discrepancies, and obscurities.

According to the new schedule, for one removal of garbage per week in a receptacle having a capacity of not to exceed 20 gallons, the charge is 75c per month, two removals per week, $1.25; three $1.75; six $3.50. For a single removal of a container of twenty gallons or less, the rate is 25c; for more than twenty gallons and less than thirty-six gallons, 35c, or $1.00 per month for one removal per week; two removals, $1.75; three $2.50; six, $5.00.

The ordinance will be printed in next week's Pine Cone.

The mayor closed the garbage discussion with an invitation to the citizens of Carmel to favor the council with their presence at future meetings, outlined a number of problems that will face the city in the near future and said that the council would appreciate an expression on the part of the citizens of their wishes and their advice. This met with the comment, "a lot of good it does us!" as the citizens filed out.

F.D. Can't Go Out Of City Limits But Check Can Come In

Dr. A. L. Van Meter has about as little reason as you can think of to contribute to the fund Fire Commissioner Frank Hefling is raising to buy a radio-phonograph for the Carmel Volunteer Firemen.

He lives outside the city limits, on the Point, in the T. J. Williams place, which he has recently purchased, and the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department does not go out of the city limits, as Dr. Van Meter knows. Moreover, he's a newcomer from Stockton, and doesn't know one volunteer fireman from another, so no personal friendship is involved. Just the same he sent $10.00 with a note saying that though he lives outside the city limits, he hopes someday his property will be within the city limits, and here's his contribution, anyway.

His check, along with a number of others, brings the fund up to $450.00; $50.00 more is needed, for Commissioner Hefling thinks $500 would be about right to buy a good instrument and a collection of records.
